CREATIVE NONFICTION WRITING, EDITING AND PUBLISHING CERTIFICATE

The graduate certificate in creative nonfiction writing, editing, and publishing is designed for students interested in becoming more expressive, powerful writers of nonfiction prose. Students interested in securing publication of their writing are mentored in the publication process by the faculty.

The creative nonfiction writing, editing, and publishing certificate is designed for the following students:

- · Writers interested in developing and publishing their creative nonfiction;
- · Graduate students in English and related fields;
- · Educators seeking writing-specific training and credentials;
- Working professionals who either are currently employed or will be seeking employment as experts in written communication;
- Individuals who work in community service organizations;
- · Individuals dedicated to cultural activities in the community.

- For ENGL 8800, topics must be related to advanced writing such as rhetoric and memory, nature writing, etc.
- For ENGL 8966, topics must be related to advanced writing such as narrative nonfiction, graphic memoir, food writing, writing women's lives or publishing the Linden Review.
- ⁴ For ENGL 8100, topic must be Native American Nonfiction.

Exit Requirements Portfolio Requirement

Students will assemble a portfolio representing their achievement in the five courses (15 hours) applied toward the creative nonfiction writing, editing and publishing certificate. The portfolio will contain at least one writing sample from each course and will be reviewed by the student's advisor and one other graduate faculty member involved in offering courses approved for this certificate. As part of the portfolio requirement, each student will make an oral presentation to the reviewing professors. During that discussion, special attention will be given to each student's professional goals for their writing. Please see the website (http://www.unomaha.edu/college-of-arts-and-sciences/english/academics/graduate-programs/) for the creative nonfiction writing, editing and publishing graduate certificate for a more detailed description of the portfolio requirement and the deadlines for submission.
