

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

The International Studies (INST) Major at UNO is an interdisciplinary program that provides an international focus and foundation for professional careers in the private, nonprofit, and public sectors, as well as graduate studies. Among these careers and further studies are international management and business, diplomacy and foreign service, national security and intelligence, international law and policy, conflict mediation, humanitarian aid, international development, non-profit organizations, international education, and public affairs. The members of the International Studies Faculty encourage students majoring in International Studies to place significant emphasis on the study of world languages and cultures. Many INST majors have a double major or a minor in a world language.

At a minimum, in order to satisfy the INST world language requirement, majors who are completing an Area Studies Concentration must complete the equivalent of three years of one university-level world language study (completion of a minor is recommended) or two years each of two world languages. At least one world language studied by those completing an Area Studies Concentration must be associated with the area chosen.

For students who are completing the general curriculum option, the Global Strategic Studies concentration or the International Management and Business Leadership concentration, the world language requirement will be two years of one world language (16 hours) or one year of world language (10 hours) supplemented with 6 hours of language credits in the same language from studying abroad.

If a student is a native speaker of another language, formal world language study may not be required.
